

Get To Know Denise Cagan

Bio:

Denise Cagan started her first company while still working as a QA Manager at Coca-Cola. After a year of doing both, she moved on to becoming a full-time business owner at DiCi Services. She grew DiCi for 10 years, selling it in 2011. At that time, Denise established a second and third company. Only one of these remains today which is her current business, DCA Virtual Business Support.

DCA Virtual provides support for growing businesses for their administrative and creative needs. Outsourcing these functions enables small business owners to develop and expand their organizations. DCA believes in small businesses and the families they support. As such, we are dedicated to helping small business owners attain growth and exceed their goals.

She attributes her success in navigating the business world to her strong operational and management style and an incredible business advisor.

Denise graduated from James Madison University with a BS in Quality Systems Development. She is a mother, grandmother, and dog-lover.

More About Denise:

Denise's personal story is inspiring: from high school drop-out to a college graduate plus being the first sibling to complete college out of 12 kids. All this as a single-parent and Girl Scout leader while working both full-time plus part-time jobs. Denise's story illustrates that adversity is never an indicator of future success or failure.
